THE 20TH CENTURY MINE

President Blum Gives Some Details of Progress at the Fanitou Mine.

Mr. Anthony Blum was in town last week hiring miners to work at his 20th Century property in the Manitou. He has spent the last two months at the mine superintending in person the erection of the new mill, and the work of development. Interviewed by a Miner reporter, Mr. Blum said that the 20-stamp mill, boiler, engine, saw mill, etc., were delivered at the mine before the ice went out, and about the middle of April the sawmill started cutting lumber for the mill building, etc. Work on the mill site was also commenced, as considerable blasting and removing of rock had to be done to prepare foundations for the stamps and other machinery. The lateness of the spring, cold weather and excessive rain made progress slow. However, the lumber for the mill is now nearly all saved and the mill site prepared. The mill timber is all framed and the carpenters are now framing the battery timber, ore bin timbers. It is expected that the mill site will be prepared in a few days, and then the building will be raised, and in course of time the machinery installed and put in operation.

GREAT ORE DEPOSITS.

The cross-cuts on the second level at 100 feet depth have just been completed. The north cross-cut shows vein No. 2, which is 28 feet wide on the first level, to be 34 feet wide on the second level and the foot wall has not been reached. The south cross-cut on second level shows vein No. 3 to be 10 feet wide, the same width as on the surface and at the first level. The mineralization and ore values of the veins on the second level is similar to the ore in the upper workings of the mine and is very much like the ore shown by Mr. Blum at the Hilliard House last fall, and which compared favourably with the ore from our best mines, and attracted considerable attention at the time.

Drifting in the mine and sinking the shaft, which is now 175 feet deep, to greater depths, will be soon started and additional levels and cross-cuts will be run.

The development of the mine is up on a group of eight parallel quartz veins, from 6 to 25 feet wide, which outcrop upon the surface, within a distance of 500 feet, and which are traced the best medical aid, had been summoned, it was of no avail.

Mr. Munro's death reduces the Liberal majority and leaves the government with a very uncertain riding vacant. North Renfrew in 1898 elected Andrew T. White, a Conservative, by a majority of 153. He died and was succeeded in 1900 by Mr. Munro, who was elected by acclamation.

The riding has been most unfortunate in the loss of its members by death. In 1890, Dunlop, Conservative, defeated Thomas Murray, who had sat for the riding from 1879, by 89 majority. He died and Barr, Liberal, was returned by acclamation. Then he was defeated by A. T. White, Conservative, who died two years after his election. Mr. Munro took his place, and just two days after he had defeated Mr. White's son, Peter White, Jr., by nearly four hundred majority, he is claimed by death.

THE RICH GOLDEN HORN.

Frank Moore tells of a trip to the Rush Bay Bonanza.

Mr. Frank Moore the best known prospector in the Lake of the Woods district called at the Miner office last Saturday and gave a glowing account of a recent inspection of the ore now being brought up from the workings of the Golden Horn mine.

"Standing in the shafthouse" says Mr. Moore, "I saw a skip load of rock brought up and upon enquiring what it was, the man in charge informed me that it was waste rock. I took a large piece of this and washed it, when I found several showings of free gold. I next went to the ore dump, and picked up several pieces of quartz, and did not inspect any that did not show free gold."

"In all my experience" said Mr. Moore impressively "I never saw a property in this country which looked more promising than does the Golden Horn. Taking the width of vein, the quality of the ore, and the general favorable indications of the property, I believe that it is equal, if not superior to any of the working mines on the lake."

THE TERMS OF PEACE.

London, June 2. In the House of Commons today the first lord of the treasury and government leader, A. J. Balfour, announced the terms of a Stock Exchange, where the members arrived an hour earlier than usual, began with the bidding up of South African securities and consols. On the official opening God Save the King was sung by all present, and a congratulatory telegram was dispatched to Lord Kitchener. The members of the exchange then marched to the Mansion House and serenaded the lord mayor, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, and afterwards resumed business, but without much enthusiasm.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

This afternoon Mr. Al. Robinson, foreman of the Electric Light Co., met with a painful accident which will lay him up for a few days. He was dragging a coil of wire from a wheel-barrow upon which there was also an axe, but forgetting about the latter, dislodged it from its position, when it fell and cut a severe gash under his ankle bone. Dr. David stitched and dressed the wound.

GENERAL SESSIONS.

The General Sessions and District Court were opened today by His Honor Judge Chapple. There was but one criminal case on the docket which was not slated for a higher court, viz. a charge of theft against J. B. Davies. The Crown Prosecutor, Mr. W. J. Moran, had charge of the case on behalf of the crown, and Mr. A. C. Boyce defended the prisoner. In summing up the judge deprecated the fact that this case had been allowed to go beyond a preliminary hearing. He found Davies guilty but reserved sentence until to-morrow morning.

OTTAWA HOTEL ROBBERY.

On Saturday afternoon Felix H. Diamond, of Montreal, was arrested at Norman by Chief Woods on a charge of stealing $80 from a guest at the Ottawa House. It appears from the evidence at the preliminary hearing that a man named David Clarke went to bed Friday night with $84 in his possession, but when he woke up next morning the money was gone. Suspicion immediately fastened upon Diamond, who had been hanging around town for some days previous to the robbery and who had disappeared next day. When located and finally arrested at Norman, $84 was found upon him. He pleaded not guilty when he appeared before Magistrate Robinson, and was committed to jail pending trial at the assizes.

DREWRY'S HANGER.

BIG FIND AT GRACE MINE

President Casler Uncovers Big Deposit of Gold-ore.

Eagle Lake jumped into mineral prominence a short time ago by a few discoveries of nuggety ores, and excitement ran high when big chunks of quartz, bearing glittering splashes of yellow metal were brought to town. A rush was made into the new Eldorado, but it was found that the gold deposits were confined to a very small area. It was the good fortune however, of a man named Casler—an American apparently—to secure a claim right in the heart of the gold field, and recognizing at once that he had got hold of no ordinary proposition, this man immediately went home and formed a company to operate the Eagle Lake claim. He took away with him numerous samples of the ores, and sent them to the government assay office, getting astonishing returns. The certificates are interesting, and if they came from any where else, but the government office one might have reasonable grounds for doubt. They don't enthrall at the government office, neither do they enthrall the anxious prospector's sympathetic postscript, when they send him a certificate testifying that his ore carried a "mere trace." The following figures show, must be swallowed without even a "grain of salt."

GOVERNMENT ASSAYS.

| Sample. | Per ton Gold. |
|---------|---------------|
| 1       | $ 232.00     |
| 2       | 545.00        |
| 3       | 741.80        |
| 4       | 1,282.40      |
| 5       | 1,683.00      |
| 6       | 4,198.00      |

These samples must have contained visible gold to go so high, so that assays were unnecessary except for the benefit of those who are not familiar with the gold mining industry. The words "bearing free gold" do not convey any meaning to the man who buys stock, while dollars and cents do, hence the necessity in floating mining companies of getting assays made, which a miner would look at superciliously, while he can see gold with his naked eye, or get a tail in the pan.

President Casler who was in town last week in an interview with a Miner reporter stated that he had struck another lode which was bigger and richer than the previous discoveries. He then opened a large adze which was packed full of quartz in large chunks,

The development of the mine is upon a group of eight parallel quartz veins, from 6 to 25 feet wide, which outcrop upon the surface, within a distance of 500 feet, and which are traced great stretches over the property. Formerly it was supposed there were only five veins, but since the timber has been removed, additional veins have been discovered. All are distinct: have defined walls, and run east and west. There are also six parallel cross veins, ranging from 1 foot upwards.

Mr. Blum states they are working a force of about 40 men, and the construction work and operation of the mine is being pushed with all possible speed.

The 20th Century Mining Company, in addition to the valuable property in the Manitou, owns and is operating gold, silver and copper mines in Arizona, which are regarded as amongst the most promising mines in the territory.

THE TERMS OF PEACE.

London, June 2.—In the House of Commons to-day the first lord of the treasury and government leader, A. J. Balfour, announced the terms of peace in South Africa, as follows:

"The Burgher forces lay down their arms and hand over all the rifles, guns and ammunition of war in their possession, or under their control.

"All prisoners are to be brought back as soon as possible to South Africa, without loss of liberty or property.

"No action is to be taken against the prisoners, except where they are guilty of a breach of the rules of war.

"Dutch is to be taught in the schools, if desired by the parents, and used in the courts, if necessary.

"Rifles are allowed for protection.

"The military occupation is to be withdrawn as soon as possible, and self-government substituted.

"There is to be no tax on the Transvaal to pay the cost of the war."

"The sum of three million sterling (£15,000,000) is to be provided for re-stocking the Boers farms.

"Rebels are liable to trial, according to the law of the colony to which they belong. The rank and file will be disfranchised for life. The death penalty will not be inflicted."

London, June 2.—Except Ireland, practically all of the United Kingdom is holiday making today, in celebration of the declaration of peace in South Africa. The streets everywhere are thronged with people, who indulge in cheering or blowing penny trumpets. The tone of King Edward's message to the people, and the absence therein of any note of exultation, seems to have set a good example, and while giving free vent to their satisfaction, the British are showing small desire to crow over their late enemies. Flags and bunting are everywhere displayed, church bells are ringing, salutes are being fired, and there is general jubilation on all sides. Crowds of suburbanites poured into London at an early hour, and converged toward the usual centres, the Mansion House, Royal Exchange, Trafalgar Square, etc., and quickly bedecked themselves with tiny flags, buttons and badges.

At intervals some enthusiast starts to sing God Save the King, which is taken up by the happy throngs, and is heard for miles through the neighborhood, from one end of the metropolis to the other.

The earliest demonstration on the charge of stealing $91 from a guest at the Ottawa House. It appears from the evidence at the preliminary hearing that a man named David Clarke went to bed Friday night with $91 in his possession, but when he woke up next morning the money was gone. Suspicion immediately fastened upon Diamond, who had been hanging around town for some days previous to the robbery and who had disappeared next day. ### DREWRY'S HANGER.

The Miner is in receipt of a handsome lithographed advertising hanger from the firm of E. L. Drewry, of Redwood factories fame. The lithograph shows Towns and Gaudin in shells, shaking hands after the boat race last September. In the corners of the gilt frame are photos of Messrs. George Drewry, G. F. Galt, Tom Sullivan and the two oarsmen. The picture is a work of art, and reflects great credit upon Mr. E. L. Drewry, whose enterprise has become a household word in Rat Portage and Winnipeg.

TOWN COUNCIL MEETING.

The council met in the town hall last night, the mayor and all members being present. No business of special importance was transacted, although it was a special meeting. A few employee accounts were however passed, and the by-law for the issuing of $65,000 debentures to buy out the C. T. & E. Co., was read the second and third times and finally passed. Just before adjournment Aldermen Horswill and Hudson introduced a motion congratulating Mayor Cameron upon his election to the legislature.

These samples must have contained visible gold to go so high, so that assays were unnecessary, except for the benefit of those who are not familiar with the gold mining industry. The words "bearing free gold" do not convey any meaning to the man who buys stock, while dollars and cents do, hence the necessity in floating mining companies of getting assays made, which a miner would look as superfluous, while he can see gold with his naked eye, or get a tail in the pan.

President Casler who was in town last week in an interview with a Miner reporter stated that he had struck another lode which was bigger and richer than the previous discoveries. He then opened a large valve which was packed full of quartz in large chunks. The ore was literally peppered with gold and must have been twice as rich as that from which the above-mentioned assays were made. The newly opened lode is 19 feet wide, and the specimens were taken right across the vein, so there would be no suspicion of a "pay streak" occurring in a large grade ore body, which one would naturally conclude a 19-foot lode to be. Mr. Casler in telling of his Grace mine unconsciously describes one of the richest deposits ever discovered in North America, and if he is not mistaken as to the width of his new ore body, he and his associates should very soon be millionaires.

The Grace Mining Company is composed of Mr. Casler, president; Samuel G. Rogers, vice-president; William H. Worhus, secy; Frank L. Dayton, treas; and Ira A. Logan, director. Head offices 575 Elliott St., Buff. N. Y.

BRITAIN'S TRIUMPH.

It can be truthfully said, that the British Empire, heaved a sigh of relief when Kitchener sent the long confined white dove of peace flashing along the cable last Saturday. The terms of the document now signed by all parties concerned, provides for the complete surrender of all the Boers, in return for which Great Britain guarantees the repatriation of all the exiles, who may return to their farms; no punishment for any who have not broken the rules of war; self government as soon as the country resumes its normal condition; no tax on accretions of the war; Dutch language to be allowed, and a sum of $15,000,000 to be appropriated for the purpose of restocking destroyed homesteads. The terms bear the half-mark of Britain's well-known magnanimity, but such an arrangement had to have for its key stone, the complete surrender of the belligerent burghers, and the colonial rebels. The war could have been ended in this manner when Lord Roberts entered Pretoria, if the Boers accepted the inevitable and thrown themselves upon the mercy of the victors—indeed it is acknowledged on all sides that had England been approached then, terms even more magnanimous than those now accepted would have been offered, and thousands of lives would have been saved on both sides.

Great Britain has spent treasure and blood almost beyond computation in this war, but it is acknowledged that they were not spent in vain. The war of the Empire has been purged of its decaying parts and its official glory, and it is now the finest fighting men in the world. Modern nations have also learned a great object lesson; i.e. that England's resources are practically unlimited, and lastly—and this is the greatest gain of all—he was his transformed Great Britain and her colonies into a great cosmopolitan Empire indissolubly linked together by hand, written in hot blood.

MYSTERY.

My ancient has written me from the sunny east that Harold Nelson is now 'on the road' with a company which will stagger the west, it is so brilliant. The list of plays that Nelson will do, include Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet, Ingomar, Merchant of Venice, Much Ado About Nothing, Damon and Pythias, Don Caesar, Fool's Revenge, Our Regiment, The Gilded Fool, Richelieu, and numerous others. A two weeks' season has been booked for Rat Portage, after which the company will play over the Walker circuit, taking in Winnipeg, Fargo, Grand Forks, Grafton and other cities, and then Nelson will go to the Pacific coast. The Nelson company is playing just now at Parry Sound.

Everybody seemed surprised at Mr. Phillip McRitchie's piano playing last Friday night when he appeared at Mrs. McLean's concert. And truly he went after that piano like a virtuoso. His first number was paper Liszt's rhapsody, and when he got through he was indeed a mastodon among local pianists. He took hold of the piano simple-like at first, but as soon as he got all the boys together there was one wild cheer for Canada and the empire, and up the kopie they flew. The fusillade of lead that met them was something awful; they could never live through it—and God above! look at the Gordons—fleeing helter-skelter down the hill, their faces grey with an agony of terror: "Back, men of Scotia, have ye forgotten Dharghair ridge?" Back they rushed, only however to be repulsed. "Poltroons!" roared the officer, and the men faced about and went to their death, falling around their beloved general.

Phillip now takes up the piano by the starboard leg and balances it on his nose, throwing kisses the while at the ladies in the audience. . . . The moon was shining on the marble balcony of the old Grange as Reginald stepped out of the French window and assisted Elsie through the tangled ivy. She shivered slightly as her satin slipper fell clicked on the cold white marble outside, but wrapping her luxurious ermine cloak more closely about her alabaster shoulders, she drew herself up to her full height and facing him in whose power she was, asked scornfully, if he still intended to put his threat into execution and ruin her father? There was a moment's pause during which a few strains of a Strauss waltz floated out on the rhododendron-scented air, but Phillip now threw the piano into the left centre, and making a sudden spring, tore out, in two huge handfuls all the strings of the instrument, and rolled them up into a great ball. The vibrations had not yet left the metal cords, so that they hissed spitefully, but he crushed them together and hurled them at the fly-gallery man who was just then taking a deep draught of lager from a

AUSTRALIA'S MISTAKE.

Would Not Have Been Known If They Knew Canada Well.

As to the Australian Commonwealth, Dr. Montague, in a recent lecture, said he thought that a great mistake was made by that colony through not knowing the ins and outs of the Canadian federal system. It was supposed in Australia that the United States had the finest and best system. They called their confederation a commonwealth, and not a dominion. The divisions of the country, instead of being called provinces, are called states. Their Parliament is called the House of Representatives, and their Senate is elective. They frankly followed the United States model and avoided the Canadian example. The result is that any power not specifically conferred on the federal authority belongs to the State. In this Dr. Montague sees the germs of many dangerous diseases. The lieutenant-governors are not appointed by the federal authority, but by the same imperial authority that appoints the Governor-General. The speaker found throughout Australia so many arguments in favor of this plan that he has grown reconciled to it, but Canadians generally will be disposed, by their own experience, to think that there can be no real and complete confederation while the federal authority is so largely nominal and is interrupted and intercepted and passed over in so many ways that we know not of in Canada. They have not in Australia the sound, smooth working confederation that we have in Canada. Already Queensland talks of secession. In that province—or shall we say state—there is a great cane sugar industry, made profitable by the importation of negro labor from the Solomon Islands. In its first session the Commonwealth has passed an educational test act, to be applied to emigrants, which will shut out the Solomon Islanders. The cry is for a 'Solomonian's Australia.' But Queensland's great industry is reaped with desolation and Queensland's Premier threatens to withdraw from the Commonwealth. Dr. Montague does not see how the matter can be adjusted. The tariff law could not have been changed, but that it was passed with this 'white man's Australia' bill.

Canada is in high favor with Australians, especially since the men of both colonies have fought the same side in Africa. The people on there do not hesitate to say that the Canadians were the best soldiers who took part in the war. Last year the United States sold thirty million dollars' worth of goods to Australia, of which Canada might have supplied twenty-four million dollars' worth. Canadian goods have now a good-will preference in that market.

A Hospital Calendar.

The Ladies' Hospital Aid Society have initiated a scheme called the Calendar Scheme, whereby they desire to materially aid in the erection of a wing to the Jubilee Hospital, Rat Portage. This Calendar Scheme, if properly carried out, ought to realize over $1,000 for the Hospital.

OUTLINE OF SCHEME.—The head of the scheme shall be known as the Year, who shall pay to the Calendar Fund the sum of $2.00. The Year shall appoint thirteen persons, who shall be known as Months, who shall pay to the Year a fee of $1.00 each, the Year handing over these fees to the Treasurer to be placed by her to the credit of the Calendar Fund. Each of the thirteen Months shall appoint four persons to be known as Weeks; each Week shall pay as soon as convenient to the Month who appointed her a fee of 50c, and each Month shall forward the same to the Treasurer. Each one of the fifty-two Weeks shall appoint seven persons to be known as Days; 265 Days in all. Each Day will pay to the week who appointed her a fee of 25c, and the Week shall forward the same to the Treasurer. Each of the Days shall endeavor to collect the sum of $2.50 that is, an average of 10c from twenty-four hours. When a Day has completed her collection she shall hand the amount to the week who appointed her who shall forward the same to the Treasurer.

If the scheme is fully carried out the result should be as follows:

|                            |    |        |
|----------------------------|----|--------|
| Fee from one Year.....     | $ | 2 00   |
| Fees from 13 Months.....   |    | 13 00  |
| Fees from 52 Weeks.....    |    | 52 00  |
| Fees from 364 Days.....    |    | 91 00  |
| Fees from 8,736 Hours..... |    | 873 60 | and this is the greatest gain of all—the war has transformed Great Britain and her colonies into a great cosmopolitan Empire indissolubly linked together by hand, written in hot blood.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The Board of Health is beginning to show signs of life since an attempt was made at transmutation by The Miner, and now the Board should show what it is made of and attack those sink holes and green covered pools of stagnant water, and filthy back yards, dirty lanes, etc. We are pleased to be able to announce that two vigorous public men, Messrs. Jos. Johnson, the chemist, and C. E. Neads have been appointed to the Board in place of Mr. John Werner who has left here, and Mr. McAtee who is also away from Rat Portage. We have hopes that the Board as now constituted will be a very live organization, and that the work neglected all spring will now be undertaken in earnest.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In fact there are living at present 212 men and women who are each over one hundred years of age. Erin's Isle is undoubtedly the healthiest country under the sun.

Wm. C. Whitney proposes that all men should cease making money at the age of sixty. Most people have not got even started to make money at that age, though many have parted with fortunes before they have reached half that.

We are in need of a blue-book—or red book, from the Ontario government, entitled a report of the Entomological Society. It tells all about insects, special mention being made of one called "a Metodon." This is a formidable insect; its jaw weighs 51lbs and 30 inches long, 21 inches wide and 18 inches high. A loose tooth was found to weigh one pound and a half.

Albion M. Gaulty introduced a motion at the special meeting last night calling up a resolution to give an opinion on the ferry by-law as to whether Capt. Lewis has the power to take people to Coney Island without any hitch that would not be expected from an amateur company.

We think that such a motion was unnecessary, combined with the name of Capt. Lewis, for if anything of this kind has occurred, it must have taken place without Capt. Lewis' knowledge or he is the last man on the Lake of the Woods who would be guilty of treating his patrons so discourteously. His attention might have been called to the matter in some other way than by an implied menace of legal proceedings.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gross, of New York, a newly married couple, were crowned at Morrisburg, Ont.

like a ladder, shoulders, she drew herself up to her full height and facing him in whose power she was, asked scornfully if he still intended to put his threat into execution and ruin her father? There was a moment's pause—during which a few strains of a Strauss waltz floated out on the rhododendron-scented air, but Philip now threw the piano into the left corner, and making a sudden spring, tore out, in two huge handfuls all the strings of the instrument, and rolled them up into a great ball. The vibrations had not yet left the metal cords, so that they hissed spitefully, but he crushed them together and hurled them at the fly-gallery man who was just then taking a deep draught of lager from a cavernous cask. The effect was electrical, but no one expected that the automobile would have so suddenly become uncontrollable. Women screamed, and frenzied men roared up telegraph poles, letter boxes, tore down store signs, rushed from butcher shops carrying carcasses of beef, and threw them in front of the auto-know, better machine, but still it continued in its mad career. Presently however, Philip gave the piano a scornful kick and it fell in a million fragments on the stage. He now became like one possessed. Seizing a broom he swept the pieces into a heap, and uttering one dread magic word, the pile of scrap suddenly assumed the form of a piano-organ. The ball of strings fell crashing on the stage, but unheeded of their plaintive appeal, Philip grasped the tangle and in less than 13 seconds every string was in place, and he was sitting in front of the reincarnated instrument playing I Don't Know Why I Love You, but he did. Then Philip got up and bowed, but the people called him back again. The piano meanwhile, terrified at the treatment it had received, tried to sneak off the stage during the tumult, but the sudden appearance of Philip so terrified the trembling piano that it could not move another inch. Taking compassion on the now thoroughly cowed instrument, he played another selection which so delighted the audience that they relented their impetuous conduct of a few moments ago and allowed him to depart in peace.

Mr. Richard Unsworth of Fergus, a graduate of the class of 1890, and at present in the custom service, has made, through the president, an interesting gift to the university. The donation consists of an argand lamp and a medical dispensatory. The lamp was at one time the property of Prof. W. H. Johnson, noted for his invention of luminescent paint, and was given by him to Mr. Unsworth, when the latter was acting as assistant in his chemical laboratory in 1947. The volume above referred to is a copy of the complete English dispensatory, dating from more than one hundred years ago. It throws an interesting light on the condition of medical science at that time, as shown by its description of some of the extraordinary remedies then in vogue.

Miss McKenzie's entertainment was well attended, and the affair passed off without any hitch that would not be expected from an amateur company. Of course children who have never been behind the scenes before cannot be brought to realize that if they lean against an apparently large tree on the stage that the monarch of the woods will totter and fall and bring down the heavens with him, involving the whole landscape in chaos. Little Odette McKenzie made the bit of the evening with her recitation, and afterwards with her unceremonious entry during a recital for a juvenile chorus number. Miss McKenzie's singing was greatly enjoyed, as was also the dramatic work of Miss Chadwick and the others who took part in Lockhart.

The cry for a "white man's Australia." But Queensland's one great industry is menaced with destruction and Queensland's Premier threatens to withdraw from the Commonwealth. Mr. Montague does not see how the matter can be adjusted. The tariff law could not have carried, he says, but that it was yoked with this "white man's Australia" bill. The people out there do not hesitate to say that the Canadians were the best soldiers who took part in the war. Last year the United States sold thirty million dollars' worth of goods to Australia, of which Canada might have supplied twenty-four million dollars' worth. Canadian goods have not a good-will preference in that market and can have a tariff preference just as soon as the two Governments get together.

Sympathetic Tribute.
A Conservative member of the Dominion House, who knew the late Mrs. Ross well, said of her: "I have met many of the wives of our public men in Canada, and I would put Mrs. Ross as being the most typical of what such a woman should be. She was gracious; she had a presence without affectation; she was always sympathetic and motherly and was a devoted companion and councillor of her husband. We often read of how the wives of the public men in the States rise in an easy way to the highest position there; this was very characteristic of Mrs. Ross; she was equal to any situation and was at home in them all. You would not quite say that she was a society woman in its narrow sense; she was essentially a social woman and a social centre, and commanded the respect of all; the love and affection of the many who came to know her well. Hers was truly a lovable character. Her husband will be a broken reed by her loss; she nursed him, was his constant companion, and gave him that helpful sympathy which goes so far in making up a successful public man these days."

Queer Heavies
In New Holland the women cut themselves with shells and, keeping the wounds open a long time, form deep scars in the flesh, which they dress highly ornamental. Another singular mutilation is made among them, when in infancy they take off the little finger of the left hand at the second joint.

JOHN ANDREWS—COWARD

... By Marvin Dams.

Copyright, 1902, by
S. S. McClure Company

Roundabout him in a straggling parallelogram stood the ungainly wooden houses of a Missouri county seat.
 Beyond lay the level brown of prairies, shot with the ocher of ripening grain, gray blue where it merged into a hori-zon's sky of appalling bronze. His sight was blurred by dancing currents of hot air. In the shade of the hotel porch the thermometer registered 116 degrees, and there yet remained two sweeter hours before sunset.

"Thank heaven, I've inspected the last acre and can start for New York in the morning," was his thought. Instinctively his hand touched his pocket and her letter. He smiled, then frowned.

"Am I a coward?"
 A paragraph in her letter had started the self-inquisition.

"I shall be so glad when you are safe home again," it ran, "even though I have no real cause for alarm. You are so big and strong and brave, and I love you for it. I could never love a coward."

Was he one? Yes—no! A flush not born of the sun flooded his face. His mind traveled back twenty-four hours, and he cursed his weakness, his timidity, which he had never realized until that awful storm had broken. It was when the terrific lightning, peculiar to this region, had played about him that he had suddenly found himself trembling, gasping with horror. The memory of those moments still sickened him and filled him with contemptuous self hate.

The proprietor of the hotel came out and balanced on two legs of a chair beside his guest.

"Reckon we'll have another bit of a shower tonight," he drawled amiably.

The careless words filled his listener with dumb anguish, half fear, half shame. Must he again endure that racking torment—the blue glare of electricity, the deadly crackling of the bolts, the horrible realization that multiple death mocked him from every side?

"I don't see any clouds," he ventured.

"You can tell weather same as you can cloth, more by feelin' than by looks. I've been forty years in these parts, an' I calculate we'll have it hammer an' tongs before midnight. Lucky if a regular cyclone don't blow along with it."

"Does lightning do much damage around here?"

"Burns a lot of barns mostly; but takin' it one time an' another, we've had quite a few folks killed, 'bout twenty in my time. It's a nice, easy death, but I don't like 'em. One hit me, an' that was enough. The darned thing killed off half the town, includin' all my best friends an' four mules, which was all I was worth.
 Cyclones, blast 'em, always come in fear to be checked. No one else was astir, and he tore open a side door, leaped to the entrance of the cave, crept through the narrow opening and sank down, his face buried in his folded arms.

He was safe at last, and a great joy of salvation welled in his heart. For a time he slept, waking with mind cleared and body refreshed. He listened intently, but no sound reached him. He crawled from his refuge, but the thought of returning to the room where he had suffered such mental tortures was hateful to him. He crossed the yard, climbed the fence and started toward the outskirts of the town. The air was of a hue strange to him, sullenly luminous, and he had gone not more than a quarter of a mile when he saw to the south, directly opposite from where the storm had come, a menacing bank of restless clouds. They were ablaze with ragged fire. The boom of thunder rose afresh. Yes; there could be no further question. A second tempest was approaching. Already the sickness of terror was upon him, the nausea of cowardice, and he again faced toward his refuge, the cave! But something in the sky held him fascinated, something shaped like a tistianic top, hump from the heavens and spun by demon hands. Then it stopped moving, growing larger and larger.

What had the landlord said that afternoon? When it stops "bouncin'," it's close!

He turned and fled for his life, but even as he ran a new thought came to him. It was not yet morning. None in the sleeping town knew of the doom racing toward their homes. He had a pitiful vision of shattered houses, littered with mutilated bodies, women and children caught from their slumbers in the crunching maw of the cyclone.

He forgot himself—and fear. He had passed the cyclone cellar and was rushing through the ball of the hotel.

"Cyclone! Cyclone! To the cave for your lives!"

The house sprang into instant life, but before the first startled guest reached the main floor Andrews was again in the street. He carried the dinner gong, which he had seized in an inspiration born of anxiety. Between each shout of warning he drummed mad, quivering alarms on the eloquent brass.

He made the round of three sides of the square when of a sudden a mighty roaring was all about him. He paused, bewildered, and a crashing thunderbolt seemed to strike his temple, a burning splendor blinded his eyes.
 Then an invisible power struck full against him, seized him and wrapped him in its crushing embrace, bore him aloft, tossed him here and there and finally into a blackness that swallowed him completely.

Three days later he woke to see an angel bending over him. No; it was flesh and blood, after all. It was she.
 He blinked at her uncertainly.

"You are a hero!" She spoke softly, with shining eyes.

Then he remembered.

"Were many saved?"

"All," she answered proudly. "Those you saved rescued the others, and only a few, who sought refuge in cellars instead of caves, were hurt by falling timbers. But you suffered most. Oh, it was noble!"

THE DOUKHOBORS

A Most Hospitably-Inclined People—Their Customs as Seen in the Northwest—Social System and Religion.

In The Globe, Lady Bernard writes: "The people (the Doukhobors in the Northwest) are most hospitably inclined, and we were no sooner established in our host's house for the night than a score of gaily-dressed visitors would flock into the room, each one greeting us with 'Drastitche' and 'Spssoi Gossida,' or 'God bless you.'"
 The Customs.

The entire costume worn by the women, including the stout shoes, is their own handiwork, even from the tanning of the leather, while the under garments which serve as chemise and bodice is bordered with a gay band of scarlet, a striking contrast to the blue and white mottled stockings which every Doukhobor woman delights in. The skirt is usually a light green, or scarlet, and the apron is brilliant lined homespun, with a wondrous race of every color of the rainbow. The loose, white shirt is kept in place by a sleeveless jacket of either black velvet or scarlet cotton, quilted with a pleated trim at the back and a band of contrasting color edging the front.
 The hair is neatly worn in a tiny straight fringe just showing under the helmet-shaped cap of wadded material bound with black velvet, and which the women work in the folds the usual white kerchief which is their outdoor headgear is replaced with a broad hat of turkey red cotton, with a soft crown, so covered with parti-colored rosettes that it looks like a bunch of poppies. This is the "gala" costume, but the Sunday morning garb worn at the service, which begins at sunrise, is more sombre and subdued. A short jacket of dark blue serge is worn fastened to the throat, while the hair is hidden under a white knitted toque nearly invisible under a dark kerchief of wine-colored silk, buttoned tightly about the head. They never make no difference in their dress time, with the exception of a brightly-colored wooden sash, which is worn round the waist of the almost military tunic of dark blue serge, which is a striped skirt made to accommodate the bulkiness of the Doukhobor's bonnet, which they all wear, and which are tucked into the long boots of soft leather, reaching nearly to the thigh. In winter both men and women wear sheepskin coats, with absurdly long sleeves, entirely covering the hand, while a curious sort of woollen hood, like a monk's, replaces the usual military cap of dark blue, with its peak of shiny leather.

The Social System.

The patriarchal system prevails, and the sons bring home their wives to the fathers' houses. Perfect harmony seems to reign in these crowded households, and the familiarity of intercourse does not lessen their great respect for good manners.
 Marriages take place at a very early age, and while none is the utmost deference and respect paid to the head of the family, the terms father and mother are seldom heard. Children addressing their parents by Christian and surname, and calling the mother
 "aunt." The marriage ceremony

The Secret

Of womanly health would be esteemed as priceless by thousands of suffering women. Each month sees them moaning in a darkened room. At the best they endure pain every day. At the worst the pain becomes torment.

The secret of womanly health is in keeping the womanly organism in a perfectly healthy state. This can be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Women suffering from chronic forms of disease are invited to consult Dr.
 Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential and womanly confidences are guarded by strict professional privacy. Address Dr.
 R. W. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There is nothing else "just as good" for womanly ailments.

"I suffered for more than ten years with female weakness of very bad form," writes Mrs. D. Marwood, of Tremaine, Macdonald Co., Manitoba. "I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' with good results. I am able to do all my own work now. I do not know how to thank you enough for the kind advice you have sent me by letter.
 Your remedies did for me more than all other doctors' medicines, and I have taken lots of them."

"You can tell weather same as you can cloth, more by feelin' than by looks. I've been forty years in these parts, an' I calculate we'll have it hammer an' tongs before midnight. Lucky if a regular cyclone don't blow along with it."

"Does lightning do much damage around here?"

"Burns a lot of barns mostly; but, takin' it one time an' another, we've had quite a few folks killed, 'bout twenty in my time. It's a nice, easy death, but I don't like cyclones. One bit me, an' that was enough. The darned thing killed off half the town, includin' all my best friends an' four mules, which was all I was worth. Cyclones, blast 'em, always come in the night, when you can't see 'em."

The listener drew his breath sharply. "But how do you tell a cyclone, even in daytime?"

"Well, Mr. Andrews, you can always tell it because the sky looks like nothin' you've ever seen before—yellow, green an' ornery. An' if it's comin' your way you'll see what the papers call a funnel shaped cloud, but what looks more like a big balloon, dancin' along. When the gale raises an' that balloon seems to stop bouncin', but stands still, gettin' bigger an' bigger, you dust for a cellar. It's close."

"Do all the places here have cyclone cellars?"

"Everybody in town ain't got one, but there's enough to go round. Want to see mine?"

Any diversion from his mental anguish and self pity was welcome to Andrews, and he followed his host to the middle of the back yard, where he saw a mound of earth. In the end nearest there was a swinging shutter, which the landlord raised. Within was space for perhaps six persons comfortably placed by crowding compactly. Twice or even thrice that number might seek refuge for a limited time. The odor of damp earth suggested the grave, and again Andrews shuddered.

By the time he sought his room at 10 o'clock that night Andrews had argued himself into believing that this new terror of storm and wind was a constitutional peculiarity for which he was not morally culpable, and exhausted by heat and mental strain he quickly dropped asleep.

He awoke with the tramp of doom bursting his eardrums. The crash of a falling thunderbolt brought him to his feet, and he stood dazed amid the lurid radiance of the lightning. In an ecstasy of fear he sprang to the window and closed it. Then he drew the shade and struck a match. Two flickered and died in his trembling hand before he could light the lamp. In a very spasm of horror he sat huddled on his bed. He thought of no one and nothing save himself and death!

But there remained another note yet to be sounded in the gamut of his terror. Suddenly the hotel commenced to shake and reel under the assaults of the wind. With cringing dismay he recalled the landlord's warning against cyclones in the night. At any moment one might burst upon him, restless, remorseless, overwhelming. Within him rose the instinct of flight. To the door, to safety!

Mechanically in the midst of his storm he dressed himself, and as he stepped into the dark hall he recalled those a golden glare of lightning. But he was now too dazed to see his

Then an invisible power struck full against him, seized him and wrapped him in its crushing embrace, bore him aloft, tossed him here and there and finally into a blackness that swallowed him completely.

Three days later he woke to see an angel bending over him. No; it was flesh and blood, after all. It was she. He blinked at her uncertainly.

"You are a hero!" She spoke softly, with shining eyes.

"Then he remembered."

"All," she answered proudly. "Those you saved roused the others, and only a few, who sought refuge in cellars instead of caves, were hurt by falling timbers. But you suffered most. Oh, it was noble!"

Andrews spoke with sudden vigor. "No; I am a coward. The storms frightened me shamefully. You cannot understand how I quivered and trembled like a child; I am not worthy of you. I had already hidden in the cave that night. I came out only when I thought all danger was over. The rest was an accident."

He stopped, exhausted, and she bent close to him.

"Don't talk that way, dearest. You are not a coward, but a conqueror of fear, and you will be my hero always."

Must Pick the Bone.

As is well known, slavery existed in a small way in Massachusetts in the early days. Slaves were often freed by will at the death of their master, and not infrequently aged and unhealthy servants were released in order to save the expense of their maintenance. The unfortunate freedman then became a charge on the town. So frequent did such cases become that the general court of 1703-4 passed an act which prohibited the freeing of servants except upon giving bonds to save the public from future charges. The historian of Malden cites an incident:

One of the old esquires of Malden had a slave who had been in his family until he was about seventy years of age. Perceiving that there was not much more work left in the old man, his owner sent for him one day and addressed him in pompous fashion.

"You have been a faithful servant to me and my father before me," he said. "I have long been thinking what I should do to reward you for your services, and I have decided to give you your freedom. You are your own master; you are your own man."

But the old negro shook his grizzled head and, with a shy glance which showed that he saw through his master's intentions, quietly replied:

"No, no, massa; you eat de meat, and now you must pick de bone."

Early Methods of Curing Skins.

The original process of curing skins was probably the simple one of cleaning and drying them. Removal of the hair by maceration in water seems to have been common among the very early tribes, and one writer has suggested that the idea was obtained from the natural process of depilation. They must certainly have been familiar with it in the case of drowned animals, where maceration can be plainly observed.

Following this smoke, near milk, oil and the brains of the animals themselves were found efficacious. Many of these primitive methods are employed at the present time.

The Social System.

The patriarchal system prevails, and the sons bring home their wives to the fathers' houses. Perfect harmony seems to reign in these crowded households, and the familiarity of intercourse does not lessen—their great respect for good manners. Marriages take place at a very early age, and while there is the utmost deference and respect paid to the head of the family, the terms father and mother are seldom heard, children addressing their parents by Christian and surname, and calling the mother "mum."

The marriage ceremony is the same as that of the Society of Friends, and no priesthood is recognized, nor yet the existence of sacraments. There has been some trouble in getting the Doukhobors to recognize the necessity for registration of births, marriages and deaths, as they imagine that registration means the first step towards compulsory military service. Divorces are allowed, but are not common. The people are exceedingly moral and honest to a degree. In their village life, freedom of discussion is greatly encouraged. The religious training in the home develops a splendid memory, as the Psalms, or portions of Scripture standing together which they call Psalms, are learned at their mother's knee, and by the time they reach manhood their memory is phenomenal.

An intensely musical people, their ear is almost perfect, the harmonies are excellent, and the taste for music appears to be accompanied by a wonderfully correct eye for lines and curves, while much of their work shows an aptitude for design.

The Doukhobor Religion.

Their religion, and its bearing upon their attitude towards their fellow-men, are most interesting. Non-resistance to evil appears to be the essence of their creed, and it certainly has had the effect of carrying them through the most terrible of sorrows and privations without leaving any of the ill-effects usually to be found in a down-trodden people. Dignified and tender, their demeanor has charmed all those whose privilege it has been to come in contact with them. Through all these years of wandering and all the horrors of life on board crowded ships they have lost none of their taste for home life and the joys of industries which are so eagerly in their peasant homes; every day seems to increase their happiness, and they are never tired of speaking of the gratitude to those who have helped them to regain their freedom.

This is a very meagre sketch of a most interesting, a luck-principled people, who are not only converting the stubborn prairie soil into magnificent fields of golden living grain, but who are founding settlements in that far-off western country which has every need of high ideals and noble aims in its inhabitants.

If they say as well as they have shown, it is safe to say that no better class of settlers has ever been brought to the Continent of America. And Canada can well afford to thank the chain of circumstance that has brought to her shores these God-fearing people, the Doukhobors of southern Russia.

Wood's Drug Store

Messrs. A. H. Hanson, A. Hilson, O. Brown, A. H. Ryan and A. O. Garuson of Litchfield, Minn., left Sunday morning to return to their home, after visiting a mining property on the lake in which they are interested.

Mrs. Bawlf of Winnipeg is registered at the Hilliard House.

Paul Gasse and Jim McGillivray returned from Contract Bay on Saturday last, bringing a quantity of samples of good looking quartz which they striped from a couple of promising veins which they located. The stuff will be assayed and if satisfactory more work will be done. - Wabigoon Star.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR NURSES.

The hospital board met in the town hall last night, when it was decided to establish a training school for nurses in connection with the Royal Jubilee Hospital. This is a most commendable move, as it will enable young ladies who reside here with their parents, to study the noble profession without having to go away to outside points.

Sporting Goods Catalogue

Here are a few of the lines: BICYCLES, Tennis, Fishing Tackle, Guns, Rifles, Football, Golf, Tennis, Skates, Hockey, Snowshoes, Boxing Gloves, Camping, etc.

T. W. BOYD & SON, MONTREAL, P. Q.

The Honorable Charles-Edmond de La Roche, Seigneur de Chamblay et de la Rivière de la Madeleine, will always be remembered in Canadian history for his singularly adroit handling of the important engagement at the battle of the old French family, he was trained in the 4th Battalion, 60th Rifles, and King's Royal Rifle Corps, and his actions in defence of the Lake Champlain frontier were singularly brave and successful. An American force, which by the rules of warfare was overwhelmingly superior, was dexterously held in

We are full of confidence

THAT this summer's business will be the largest in our history. We are making extensive preparations in all of our departments. We are in a position to buy in the very best markets. Consequently we can sell right. We know we can please you, because we have the best goods at the lowest possible prices. The principal reason of our confidence consists in the prices, combined with the quality of our merchandise. Look over our price list and compare it carefully with any offerings made by other stores, and you will agree with us that if ever this store has fulfilled its promise to furnish "better goods for the same money or the same goods for less money than elsewhere" this is the time.

Ladies' Summer Underwear.

LADIES! You had better purchase for the warm weather. It won't be long before Old Sol will be throwing his hot rays down upon you. Our stock in this department is now complete, at least we think so, as we have everything in summer underwear that our customers could desire. If you would have fine underwear at the cost of the
